

Object Detection in Computer Vision

Object detection involves identifying and locating objects within digital images or video streams using deep learning